Hi guys, there's a change with the IPTV service you have, and it will now be streamed through a new app. Everything about the service still works, it'll just look different in the new app. You can download it via the filelinked app & use the code to my store to get it. Here are instructions to help you:

Delete the current TVOB app that you are streaming the channels from.

If you have the Filelinked App already installed, open the app and use the code 84212804 when prompted.

If you do not have the Filelinked App, use the downloader app or use the internet browser installed on your device to type in this URL – http://troypoint(dot)com/fl - this will download the filelinked app to your downloads folder. Find it and install it on your device. Then open filelinked app and use the code stated above.

You will see a section titled Essential Downloads and Exodus, VLC & Wuffy Apps beneath them. Download and install all 3 of these using the buttons on the right of the screen. (The cinema free app below these can be installed if you want but it's not essential.)

Once you have installed the apps above open the EXODUS app and use the same login details you were provided with at the start of your service.

Once logged in you will see a blue screen with the categories down the left-hand side and some icons in the top right of the screen. Click the SETTINGS icon (gear shape)

Go to EXTERNAL PLAYERS – click add player in the top right-hand corner. This is where you will add the VLC & Wuffy media players that you also just installed. These players are far superior and more reliable than the default player built into the app. Once installed, come back out to the settings screen.

Click PLAYER SELECTION – you can now set your desired media player to be used with each different category (live tv/movies etc).....personally mine are set to VLC player, and if any problems occur with the stream (glitchy/jumpy/won't load) you can switch it to Wuffy player and see if that helps. Sometimes it will fix the issue.

You can now back out to the main screen & enjoy the same TV as before. It just looks different in the new app.

Any favourites you had bookmarked or parental locks you had set up will need to be re-done.
